Bold Plastic straws contain one to four different types of polymers, and, like any other plastic, they are prone to breaking into small pieces. For this reason, plastic straws should be stored in containers with a high-dispersion surface to prevent them from breaking into micro-spheres. Why does straw get cloudy when you are at the beach? Wet, wind, salt water, or sun exposure can cause bubbles to form in a straw. These bubbles are small, but they can sometimes be

Regular quite large. The larger bubbles may leak out of the straw and damage other items on the beach. Straw bubbles may also create some cloudiness, resulting in a less pleasant view from the beach. What are the risks when using straw? There are Light no risks that you are putting yourself or someone else at a higher risk when using a plastic straw. When should you dispose of plastic straws at the beach? You should dispose of straws in a non-chlorine environment. This includes all plastic straws used Extra Light in showering, bathing, hot tubbing, sauna-ing, milkshake parties, soda fountain cadenzas, Coke and Pepsi tug-o-wars, ocean drinking, and water skiing. About Aglet Slab

Confident and well-rounded

Roundness is the heart of Aglet Slab's structure—not merely a surface detail. Blunt serifs and repeated geometric shapes find variety in a strategic hierarchy of curves, from subtly cushioned points to abrupt circular ends. An underlying framework of 45° and 90° angles provides a stable foundation for more boastful characters and organic details.

Aglet Slab reverberates a friendly high-tech tone when used prominently, but it stays crisp and nimble in longer texts. A broad range of weights in Roman and Italic add up to fourteen versatile styles, each with matching symbols. You'll want Aglet Slab at hand for whatever comes around the corner.
